A MESSAGE FROM OUR PASTOR

The Book of Genesis tells us that at Babel, God confused the tongues of men because of their pride. Ever since then, communication between nations has been difficult, and, at least partly for that reason, international peace has been hard to keep. Only once and briefly has God restored a single language to mankind. On Pentecost, the Apostles preached to pilgrims from many lands, but each heard them speaking in his own tongue.

What happened at Pentecost was, of course, miraculous. Now, Pope Saint John Paul II had a "gift of tongues", not in a miraculous sense, but in the sense that he easily learned languages other than his native Polish. When he addressed people who spoke the world's major languages, he was able to speak those languages quite well. But he even sought to learn at least a little of the more exotic tongues when he was about to visit some exotic countries. Thus he learned how to offer Mass in "Pidgin English," that odd half-English language invented by European merchants in the South Pacific. When the Pope celebrated Mass at Papua-New Guinea in May, 1984, he said, for instance, "Yumi Pre" ("Let us pray") and "Bodi belong Kristus" ("Body of Christ"). The people were pleased to hear him speak their words: it made them feel that John Paul was truly their Pope. (Some of the natives even wore tee-shirts stamped in Pidgin: "Mi Likim Pop" – "I love the Pope.")

One of the papal stops on that same journey was at Fairbanks, Alaska. In his brief talk then, John Paul recalled how when he last visited Fairbanks he was greeted by a seven-year old, Mollie Marie, who gave him a bouquet of the Alaskan state flower, forget-me-nots. He said he was sad to hear that Mollie Marie had since died, but he would never forget her loving gesture. And he assured the people of Alaska and the people of the whole United States that, even when he was far away from their shores, he would "forget them not."

We must wait until the resurrection of the dead before all human beings will once more be able to speak to each other in the same world-language. Meanwhile, however, whether we are gifted like the Pope at learning the tongues of other nations, there is one international language that we can use even now, and that all men understand, because they read it in each other's eyes. It is the language that shy little Mollie Marie spoke when she handed the forget-me-nots to the Holy Father. It is the language of love.

The Reverend Edward J. Smith

PRO-LIFE

"The basis of these values cannot be provisional and changeable "majority" opinions, but only the acknowledgment of an objective moral law which, as the "natural law" written in the human heart, is the obligatory point of reference for civil law itself. If, as a result of a tragic obscuring of the collective conscience, an attitude of skepticism were to succeed in bringing into question even the fundamental principles of the moral law, the democratic system itself would be shaken in its foundations, and would be reduced to a mere mechanism for regulating different and opposing interests on a purely empirical basis." Pope John Paul II - EVANGELIUM VITAE, March 1995, To the Bishops, Priests and Deacons, Men and Women religious, Lay Faithful, and all People of Good Will on the Value and Inviolability of Human Life.

HOLY SPIRIT, BRING TO US A DESIRE FOR EUCHARISTIC ADORATION

2005 - Cardinal Bergoglio Homily On Occasion Of Pope John Paul II Death - "John Paul was simply consistent. He never deceived, he never lied, he was never evasive. John Paul communicated with his people, with the coherence of a man of God, with the consistency of someone who spent long hours in Adoration each morning, and as he adored he allowed himself to come into harmony with the power of God. Consistency is forged in the heart through (Eucharistic) adoration."
